Relief in sight?

Cooler weather may be ahead

Ryan Heilman worked to pave a section of Broadway Street for All-Star Paving of Seymour. Nearby shade trees and a steady breeze — in addition to being hardened by a summer of working with 300-degree asphalt — did help make his job a little more comfortable.

The calendar may say autumn but Courierarea thermometers are screaming red-hot summer as Madison and surrounding communities have endured six consecutive days of record-breaking heat to close out September and begin October.

The temperature in Madison hit a high of 93 degrees on three of the last four days — the "coolest" high on Monday was 91 — with humidity making it feel more like 96.

However, some relief could arrive starting Thursday when a cold front is forecast by afternoon and evening. Temperatures are expected to max out in the low 90s Thursday and then see more fall-like highs in the 70s by Friday. The weather will warm back up with highs in the low 80s Saturday before a second cold front hits the region Sunday and Monday.

While temperatures will see some relief by Thursday, dry conditions will not. Only isolated showers are forecast before the weekend cold front is expected to deliver some much-needed showers.

After more than a month of hot, dry weather, the entire Courierarea is currently under a ban on outside burning. Plants are shedding their leaves and fields and yards are dry and brittle. Those conditions are not likely to improve — or the burn ban be lifted — until the area receives substantial moisture in the form of a soaking rainfall.

Football homecoming is Saturday at Hanover College — one of the biggest tailgate parties of the year there — and the ban on outdoor burning will mean no open fires or fireworks.

Although there was a big crowd in downtown Madison for last weekend's Madison Chautauqua Festival of Art and Old Court Days, foot traffic on Tuesday and Wednesday, when record highs were felt, left sidewalks almost empty. Those who were out sought shade and other ways to stay cool and those who had to work in the conditions toughed it out by trying to stay hydrated and taking more breaks.

Buses, repairs in Southwestern school budget

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

The Southwestern Jefferson County school board gave residents a first glimpse into the 2020 district budget Monday night, which proposes an incremental increase of 0.14 percent in total advertised tax rates.

Southwestern schools treasurer Laura Boldery explained the new budget at a public hearing before Monday night's regular school board meeting. It sets aside $14,626,098 in appropriations, but the actual number is expected to be smaller after state review, as it usually is each year.

"It's kind of guesswork right now," Boldery said. "I advertise high, and then after we have our adoption hearing, the Department of Local Government Finance will come back, and they will cut the budget wherever they feel like we have overadvertised or we don't have the funds to fund it."

Included in that budget is a 25-year bus-replacement plan and a three-year capital project plan for building maintenance, facilities projects and technology.

Boldery said the bus plan projects a replacement of three new buses a year from budget year 2020 to 2023. The total estimated cost for the first four years of the plan is about $1,395,000, according to the taxpayer notice provided at the meeting.

The capital project plan, on the other hand, will provide for roof repairs, painting projects, elevators at the middle and high school and repaving the track, among other work.

This is estimated to cost the district $2,864,000, the taxpayer notice said. It also provides for new Chromebooks, teacher laptops, Promethean boards and a camera replacement, which will total $715,000.

Boldery also pointed out that the tax rate on retirement bonds is much smaller this year, by 120 percent, because it's the last payment the distract will have to make.

The public hearing on the adoption of the revised budget will be Oct. 28, Boldery said.

The board also decided to purchase two used 2006 minibuses for $19,600 for both to help with school athletics and other trips.

Boldery said the district already has some minibuses, but with all of the fall athletics trips, they run short on availability.

Board Vice President John Jones asked Boldery if the minibus purchase would affect the school's immediate ability to afford another full-sized bus. Boldery assured him it would not, and said the district is likely to buy a new bus by the end of the 2019 budget year if there is any money left in the operations fund.

Also at the meeting, Southwestern accepted $1,400 in donations from four donors. The donors were Greg Leach, who donated $100 for middle school volleyball; L & N Machine, which donated $200 for middle school volleyball; $100 from an anomymous donor for high school cheerleading and $1,000 from another anonymous donor for the Preston Jackson Scholarship.

Election activities, filling Welch position until year's end

Key dates in November vote

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

A couple of important dates are coming up for voters in Jefferson County next week. The deadline to register to vote or change address for the November General Election is Monday, Oct. 7, and voters who are registered can begin early voting Tuesday, Oct. 8 at the Jefferson County Courthouse.

Voters needing to register or change their address after moving can do so at indianavoters.in.gov or at the county's Voter Registration Office on the second floor of the Jefferson County Courthouse.

It is also a good idea for voters who have not participated in a recent election to confirm their eligibility since the state's first voter purge since 2015 took place this summer.

Voters wishing to cast their ballot early do not need a reason. Every registered voter can vote early, and voting will take place at the Voter Registration Office from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

There will be several other opportunities to vote early, including two Saturdays and at two satellite voting locations.

The Voter Registration Office will be open for early voting 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 26 and Saturday, Nov. 2.

Satellite voting locations also will be open at the Jefferson County Health Department from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, Oct. 11 and Friday, Oct. 25, as well as at the Hanover Park Building from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, Oct. 18, and Friday, Nov. 1. Any voter from Madison or Hanover can vote at either location.

Voters who want to vote by mail should visit or call the Voter Registration Office at 812-265-8926 or file an application online at indianavoters.in.gov

The Voter Registration Office started sending out vote-by-mail ballots the week of Sept. 16 and 161 ballots have been mailed as of Oct. 1, with 155 of those already returned.

The last day for the Voter Registration Office to accept an application for a mail-in ballot is Thursday, Oct. 25, and ballots must be returned to the office by Monday, Nov. 4 to be counted.

Anyone interested in working as a poll worker in the upcoming election should call the Voter Registration Office at 812-265-8926.

Party to caucus on mayor

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

The Republican Party has submitted paperwork to put a Republican in the office vacated last week with the death of Madison Mayor Damon Welch.

Karl Eaglin, chairman of the Republican Party in Jefferson County, said paperwork was submitted Monday to begin the process this month.

"We've submitted the certificate of death and sent notice that we intend to do that," Eaglin said.

Pursuant to the city's charter, Dan Dattilo, the council's president and pro tempore, was sworn in as acting mayor last Wednesday shortly after the death of Welch.

However, Dattilo is a Democrat and Welch was a Republican. Therefore, the Republican Party is exercising its option of naming its own appointment to the post by caucus.

The party has 30 days to schedule that caucus and conduct its election to select a candidate. That would put the date at no later than Oct. 30.

Caucus voters will be the party's precinct committeemen who vote in precincts for Madison city elections.

Republican Party Vice Chair Mindy McGee said that includes all or parts of 11 precincts in Jefferson County.

She declined to identify the eligible committeemen by name but noted that not all 11 precincts currently have committeemen.

Candidates who are interested in the position must notify the party to be considered at the caucus.

The person elected by the caucus will serve out Welch's unexpired term, which ends Dec. 31, 2019.

A two-term mayor, Welch had opted not to seek a third term in office, so the city would have installed a new mayor either way starting in January 2020.

That person will be decided at the November General Election between Republican candidate Bob Courtney and Democrat Julie Berry.

Learn what to do if fire occurs, Milton firefighters warn

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff report

Milton Fire and Rescue and the National Fire Protection Association are promoting this year's Fire Prevention Week campaign, "Not Every Hero Wears a Cape. Plan and Practice Your Escape!" to educate the public about staying safe if a house fire occurs.

This year's campaign, from Oct. 6 to Oct. 12, encourages people and their families to plan an escape in the event of a fire in their homes. While the lessons are focused on home fires, they also apply to other places.

"Situational awareness is a skill people need to use wherever they go," said Jason Long, Milton Fire and Rescue chief. "No matter where you are, look for available exits. If the alarm system sounds, take it seriously and exit the building immediately."

In 2017, U.S. fire departments responded to 357,000 house fires, which caused 2,630 fire deaths and 10,600 fire injuries, according to the fire protection association. On average, seven people died in a house fire each day from 2012 to 2016.

"These numbers show that home fires continue to pose a significant threat to safety," said Lorraine Carli of the association. "In a typical home fire, you may have as little as one to two minutes to escape safely from the time the smoke alarm sounds. Escape planning and practice can help you make the most of the time you have, giving everyone enough time to get out."

Milton Fire and Rescue had responded to 24 fires this year as of Wednesday, which is on pace to be one of the busiest years in recent memory, according to data on its website. The department has responded to about 25 fires a year since 2012.

HOW TO MAKE A HOME FIRE ESCAPE PLAN

• Draw a map of your home. Show all doors and windows.
• Visit each room. Find two ways out.
• All windows and doors should open easily. You should be able to use them to get outside.
• Make sure your home has smoke alarms. Push the test button to make sure each alarm is working.
• Pick a meeting place outside. It should be in front of your home.
• Everyone will meet at the meeting place.
• Make sure your house or building number can be seen from the street.
• Talk about your plan with everyone in your home.
• Learn the emergency phone number for your fire department.
• Practice your home fire drill!
• Practice the Escape Plan
• Call the family together. Let everyone know that you are going to do a practice fire drill.
• Explain that when the smoke alarm goes off, everyone should quickly and carefully leave the home and go to the outside meeting place.
• Ask everyone to go to a different room and wait for the alarm. After several minutes, set off the smoke alarm by pushing the test button and watch your families actions.
• When everyone assembles at the outside meeting place, ask each member to explain exactly what they did when the alarm went off.
• Review any questions and repeat the drill at least one more time.

South Bend fire chief picked as new state fire marshal

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — The South Bend fire chief is becoming Indiana's new state fire marshal. Gov. Eric Holcomb's office announced the appointment Tuesday of Stephen Cox to head the agency that investigates suspicious fires, promotes fire prevention and enforces safety codes in public buildings. Cox has been South Bend's fire chief since 2012 and has been with that department in roles including firefighter and paramedic for 26 years. He also was an Army combat medic during the 1990-91 Persian Gulf War with Iraq. Cox replaces Jim Greeson, who retired last month after 11 years as fire marshal. Cox takes over his new position Oct. 21. Holcomb said Cox will bring "great experience, leadership and vision" to the position.

16 students get insulin accidentally

INDIANAPOLIS — Sixteen students were hospitalized as a precaution Monday after they were mistakenly injected with insulin during a tuberculosis skin test, according to school officials. The Metropolitan School District of Lawrence Township said the students from the McKenzie Center for Innovation & Technology were taken to local hospitals for observation after being injected with a "small dosage" of insulin by Community Health Network personnel. The tuberculosis skin test requires an intradermal injection of liquid — 0.1 milliliter of a purified protein derivative called tuberculin — in the lower part of their arm, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. A resulting bump is checked for two or three days for any signs of latent or active tuberculosis infection. The district said it's working closely with Community Health Network "to determine the cause of the error." It's unclear why the students were receiving the test. The side effects of a too high injection of insulin includes sweating, nervousness, hunger and irritability, according to the Mayo Clinic. Responding to questions on the size of the insulin dosage and how the mistake occurred, Community Health Network released a statement saying it is committed to patient safety and values relationships and partnerships and "consider it a privilege to partner with schools including MSD of Lawrence Township."

No criminal charges for small pot amounts

INDIANAPOLIS — The prosecutor for Indianapolis is going to stop pressing criminal charges against adults for possessing about one ounce or less of marijuana. Acting Marion County Prosecutor Ryan Mears announced the new policy Monday, saying the office will focus on prosecuting violent crimes. He said the one-ounce level distinguishes between users and dealers, whom the office will continue prosecuting. Mears said the office has dismissed about 80 percent of marijuana possession charges so far this year. Mears became acting prosecutor last week with Prosecutor Terry Curry's resignation. A Democratic Party caucus Saturday will select Curry's replacement. Tim Moriarty, a top aide to Indianapolis Mayor Joe Hogsett, is challenging Mears. Moriarty said he supports the marijuana policy change but that more drug abuse and mental health treatment also is needed. Mears said the decision only covers simple possession. "We're going to continue to prosecute individuals who use marijuana during the course of an accident or if they're impaired for marijuana, those types of cases," he said. "And also public consumption. I don't want people to get the idea that if you walk down to the monument, people are free to light up in public. That's not what this is about. This is about making sure that we treat everybody fairly."

STATE BRIEFS

State warns about algae blooms on Ohio

INDIANAPOLIS — Officials are warning people about harmful algae blooms on the Ohio River near Cincinnati, Ohio, and Louisville, Kentucky. The Indiana Department of Environmental Management and the Indiana State Department of Health issued the warning on Friday, cautioning swimmers and boaters to be careful in all recreational waters this time of the year. The agencies advised boaters and swimmers to avoid contact with visible algae and swallowing water and to bathe with warm, soapy water after coming in contact with water, especially before preparing or consuming food. Pets and livestock should also not be allowed to swim in or drink untreated water. Exposure to the algae blooms can lead to rashes, eye irritation, nausea, and other symptoms. More information is available online.

Governor ends trip to China

INDIANAPOLIS — Gov. Eric Holcomb said he had a productive trip to China amid that country's trade war with the United States. Holcomb concluded a week of meetings with Chinese government and business leaders on Monday with sessions in Shanghai. Holcomb said in a statement he's optimistic about future business investments between Indiana and China. The governor said this was "the perfect time" to broaden business, cultural and academic relationships. The Trump administration has imposed tariffs on Chinese imports in a bid to win concessions from China, which has responded with tit-for-tat tariffs. The dispute between the world's two largest economies has darkened the global economic outlook. Holcomb continues his overseas trip to India, where he travels until Saturday. He visited Japan and South Korea for a week in early September.

Mom gets 41 years in daughter's death

MUNCIE — A woman has been sentenced to 41 years in prison for a highway crash that killed her 6-year-old daughter. WTHR-TV reported a Delaware County judge sentenced Jessica Skeens, 30, Monday. The Farmland woman was convicted in August on seven of nine charges, including neglect of a dependent resulting in death and driving while intoxicated. She was driving a van in May 2017 when it crashed along the Muncie Bypass, killing Taelyn Ann Marie Woodson, who wasn't in a child safety seat. Skeens' three other children survived the crash. Skeens told jurors she drank whiskey and smoked marijuana before the crash. But she and her attorney contended the crash occurred because Skeens' then-boyfriend had punched her in the face. Nathaniel Jordan is awaiting trial in the crash.

Judge orders new trial for convicted Jill Behrman killer

(Bloomington) Herald-Times

A federal court has ordered John Myers be released from prison because his lawyer was deficient during the trial in the death 19-year-old Jill Behrman.

In a 147-page ruling issued late Monday, U.S. District Court Judge James R. Sweeney of the Southern District of Indiana wrote that Myers' representation by attorney Patrick Baker was so egregious that the murder conviction cannot stand.

Morgan County Prosecutor Steve Sonnega, who prosecuted the case, has 120 days to decide whether to appeal the ruling. He said on Tuesday that he is disappointed and will confer with Behrman's family and the state attorney general before deciding whether to pursue a new trial.

Excerpts from Judge Sweeney's ruling:

"The Court concludes that Mr. Myers received ineffective assistance of counsel at trial in violation of his Sixth Amendment rights. Most notably, Mr. Myers's counsel made false statements to the jury during opening arguments, which counsel admitted to the Indiana Supreme Court in a subsequent attorney disciplinary proceeding. He also failed to object to two significant categories of evidence that should not have been presented to the jury.

Jill Behrman

"In the end, these serious errors all but destroyed the defense that trial counsel presented to the jury and tainted the entire trial.

"In denying Mr. Myers's ineffective-assistance-of-counsel claim, the Indiana Court of Appeals unreasonably applied clearly established federal law ... When these standards are correctly applied, they reveal that Mr. Myers's counsel's errors 'so undermined the proper functioning of the adversarial process that the trial cannot be relied on as having produced a just result.'

This case presents a rare instance where this has occurred.

"Accordingly, Mr. Myers' petition for a writ of habeas corpus is granted, ordering Mr. Myers' release from custody unless the state elects to retry Mr. Myers within 120 days of the entry of final judgment in this action."

Myers is being held at the Indiana State Prison in Michigan City and had not been eligible for release until June 2037.

The judge noted that a new trial "will likely come only at considerable cost — to the state, yes, but, more important, to the victim's family and community still wounded by their tragic loss.

Such costs do not enter into the constitutional analysis; and yet, the court cannot help but express its empathy for those who must bear them for the sake of our Constitution and its protections."

2 counties begin mosquito virus fight

GOSHEN — Two counties will conduct aerial spraying to combat a rare mosquito-borne virus that's been found in several local horses. Elkhart and LaGrange counties' commissioners authorized the spraying Monday in separate meetings. The decisions by the adjoining counties comes after eight horses in Elkhart County and two in LaGrange County tested positive for eastern equine encephalitis. The Goshen News reported human cases of the virus in adjacent Michigan counties factored in the Indiana counties' decisions to begin spraying. The virus has been confirmed in humans or animals in at least 13 Michigan counties. Three people have died . No Indiana residents have been diagnosed with the virus, which can cause brain infections. Spraying is scheduled to begin Wednesday in Elkhart County, weather permitting. LaGrange County officials haven't finalized their plans.

Kentucky

3-year-old boy fatally mauled

LOUISVILLE — Police say a 3-year-old child was fatally mauled Tuesday morning by two Rottweilers owned by his family. According to 911 audio, the attack happened in the family's backyard. Louisville police spokesman Dwight Mitchell said the dogs were taken by Louisville Metro Animal Services. He said an investigation is ongoing to determine what happened. He later said no charges will be filed.

Stop vaping warning issued

LOUISVILLE — Officials have issued a public health warning that urges people who use vaping products to stop in the face of a national outbreak of severe lung injuries. A statement from the Louisville health department said there are 805 cases of lung illness in 46 states and one territory. Kentucky has 20 cases under investigation. Louisville Mayor Greg Fischer said city officials are "deeply concerned" about the public health trends, which include a rise in teen vaping. Department of Public Health and Wellness Director Sarah Moyer said "vaping is not safe" whether it is electronic cigarettes or other products.

Sinkhole at zoo getting bigger

LOUISVILLE — A zoo has spent thousands on a sinkhole about as wide as a football field, but still hasn't settled on a long-term plan for the problem. Louisville Zoo Director John Walczak told the Courier Journal the zoo is weighing how to best handle the sinkhole, which opened in March in an undeveloped zoo section. Walczak said the zoo has spent about $125,000 on the sinkhole, which now is about 60 yards wide, 90 yards long and 50 feet deep. Costs have included fencing, engineering, surveys and other responses. The sinkhole closed the zoo for 10 days and cost thousands in revenue since then by shutting down a train ride. Walczak said it may cost $500,000 to move the popular ride.

Barge hits marina, sets boats free in Ohio

LUDLOW — Fire and police units are at the scene of a barge accident that set several boats adrift or sinking in the Ohio River. The barge hit the Ludlow Bromley Yacht Club Wednesday morning hard enough to partially submerge the marina's bar and grill. Kenton County Director of Homeland Security and Management Steve Hensley told news outlets that six boats were knocked loose. Hensley said there was one person on the barge and one person on one of the boats, but neither was injured. Dispatchers said multiple police and fire departments responded to the scene.

Male student accused of sexual abuse on bus

STANFORD — Authorities say a high school student accused of inappropriately touching a girl on a school bus has been arrested. News outlets report Matthew Boswell, 18, has been booked into the Lincoln County Regional Jail on a first-degree sexual abuse charge. An arrest report stated Boswell repeatedly grabbed a 13-year-old girl inappropriately while she resisted Friday afternoon. School resource officer Preston Middleton reviewed video from the school bus Monday. Middleton said the charges wouldn't have been brought against Boswell without the aid of the bus driver who said the matter needed to be investigated further. Parents of the children riding the bus were sent a letter notifying them about the incident and arrest.

Driver killed in gunfire with police

ELKTON — Police say two officers conducting a traffic stop exchanged gunfire with the driver, who was killed. Kentucky State Police spokesman Trooper Rob Austin said an Elkton police officer and a Todd County sheriff's deputy stopped a pickup truck Tuesday afternoon in Elkton and the driver brandished a gun and fired it. He said officers fired their weapons and the man was killed. No officers were injured. Police did not release the identity of the driver or the officers. Austin told The Kentucky New Era that he didn't know the reason for the initial stop. He said an autopsy would be performed and police would release names after families were notified. No further information was available.

Ex-officer charged in rape of relative, 15

PADUCAH — A former police officer is charged with raping and impregnating an underage relative more than four decades ago. News outlets reported former Paducah police officer Henry Glore, 71, was arrested Tuesday on charges of third-degree rape and incest by compulsion with a victim younger than 18. Police Chief Brian Laird said the department learned of the allegation last year and forwarded the case to state police. Trooper Bryan Luckett said DNA samples confirmed Glore's paternity and the maternity of the victim, who was 15 years old at the time and later gave birth. Glore worked as a police officer in New York City before joining the Paducah department in 1976.

Let Us Pause to Honor the Memory of

Mr. Tom Chilton

Mr. Tom Chilton, age 81, of Madison, Indiana entered this life on September 14, 1938 in Austin, Indiana. He was the loving son of the late Isaac S. and Freida Lavette Lichlyter Chilton. He was raised in Austin and was a 1956 graduate of Austin High School. He led his Austin High School basketball team in both scoring and rebounding, averaging 23 points and 22 rebounds per game his senior year under Hall of Fame Coach Ray Green. At Austin, he was No. 12 and later on the school would retire his number. He was named 1956 Louisville Courier-Journal All-State which was a proud accomplishment. Tom was fortunate to receive a four year basketball scholarship to East Tennessee State University which in turn made him the first college graduate in his family. During his years at East Tennessee State, Chilton racked up an impressive record. He was "All American in Basketball" in 1961; "All Ohio Valley Conference"in 1959, 1960 and 1961; "First Team Ohio Valley Conference and All Time Basketball"He held the school record for most career points with 1,801; most points scored in one season at 771; and most points scored in one game at 52. His average 26.1 points per game is still a record at the school, as is his most-points scored in one game. He led the Ohio Valley Conference in scoring and rebounds and was selected to be a "Converse All American"in 1961. During that season, Chilton was second in the nation in scoring and 10th in the nation in rebounding. While a student at ETSU he would meet his future wife and they were united in marriage in Boone, North Carolina. This happy union of sixty years was blessed with daughters, Cathy, Cara, and Celinda and a son, Chan Thomas. Tom felt his greatest accomplishment was all of his children graduating from college. He was drafted by the NBA's St. Louis Hawks and played exhibition games as a rookie until he was drafted by the Army. Tom was inducted into the United States Army during the "Berlin Wall" and served two years, while serving he was also a member of the basketball team. He was honorably discharged and remained in the reserves for two more years. Chilton was inducted into the East Tennessee State University Athletic Hall of Fame and his number 42 jersey was retired. In August 2007, Kevin Tiggs, the 2007 National Junior College Division II Player of the Year, requested and was granted permission to wear the number 42 for the last two seasons of his career at the college. Charlie's Beat

Soup, Stew, Chili, Brew and music too!

By CHARLIE ROHLFING

As regular readers of this column know by now, Madison is Indiana's Music City. So when we have any kind of event, be it a boat race, an arts fair or a soup and stew fest, we're by golly gonna have music, too. And that's not even counting our pure music festivals, of which we can boast several now.

The annual Soup, Stew, Chili & Brew Festival just keeps getting bigger every year. Lindsay Bloos at the Madison Chamber of Commerce said the festival, which is Oct. 12 this year, has doubled in size and attendance in just a few short years. And the breadth and quality of the music keeps growing, too.

"Music has always been part of the DNA of Soup Stew," said Rusty Bladen. "John Walburn started out as the music coordinator, and I took over after he passed. It started out with just one stage and two or three bands, and now we've grown to three stages and eleven music acts this year.

"One of the big reasons we've been able to grow the festival, and the music in particular, is the involvement of some great sponsors. This year Walmart came on board and sponsored all the music, which is very exciting.

"Our philosophy is to keep it acoustic-based, and to focus on solo and duo acts. Our stages are too close together to feature loud bands. The stages are currently all on Main Street, but as things keep growing, we might put stages down some of the side streets, we'll see.

"Another thing we pride ourselves on is featuring more local acts. We have a few out-of-towners coming for sure, and we're very excited about them. But we like to make sure all of our great local talent gets showcased. Next year we'll be looking for some jazz acts, maybe pop, and I'd like to try some hardcore country.

"Like I said, most of the acts are local but we have some great outside talent coming in, too. Kade Puckett is an Indiana state fingerpicking guitar champion. Britton Patrick Morgan is an amazing singer-songwriter out of Louisville. And from Nashville, we have Amanda Webb on keyboard."

All the sets are 45 minutes, kicking things off with Jimmy Davis and Bill Lancton at 11 a.m. Charlie Rohlfing (that's me!) is next at 11:30 a.m., Robert Reynolds and Darryl Hewitt at noon, 2 Buck Chuck at 12:30 p.m., Britton Patrick Morgan at 12:45 p..m., Amy Noel at 1:30 p.m., Jordan Wilson at 2 p.m., Rusty Bladen at 2 p.m. (different stage), Robby Cox at 3 p.m., Kade Puckett at 3:15 p.m., and finishing up with Amanda Webb at 3:30 p.m.

"If you are a musician and you'd like to be considered for next year's line-up, submit your name and music samples to Lindsay Bloos at the Madison Chamber of Commerce.

"It's a lot of fun," Rusty said. "I get up at 6 in the morning, start setting up stages and sound. My brother Rick helps me every year, and Gary Duckworth is helping too. Not only do I organize the music, but I've performed every year of the festival except one," he said. "I like being involved, and I feel like it's a way of giving back to the community."

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK:

Thursday at Red Bicycle Hall, the incomparable Black Lillies will visit Madison one more time. Our town has a long love affair with this Knoxville-based country-rock band, ever since it first played RiverRoots. The show starts at 7 p.m., so you can still make your weeknight bedtime! On Saturday the Elks Lodge is celebrating its 120th anniversary with a big party. The Marlinaires will be playing, and they evoke a real sweet sense of nostalgic charm. They take you right back to the days when all the social clubs used to host dances all the time.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

As rural groceries fade, lawmakers wonder what to do

By APRIL SIMPSON
Stateline

Nancy McCloud did not have any food industry bona fides. She had never worked in a grocery store; not even a restaurant. And yet three years ago, when her local grocery in central New Mexico closed, she wanted to offer the community (population: 863) the fresh foods they otherwise would have to travel 47 miles to get.

Mountainair, New Mexico, is a popular tourist stop because of its proximity to 17th century ruins that harken to the earliest contact between Pueblo Indians and Spanish colonials. It's known as the "gateway to ancient cities." But without a grocery store, McCloud feared Mountainair might become another relic of the past.

"When you have a small rural town and the grocery store dies, the town dries up and it just blows away," said McCloud, who revived B Street Market in 2017 and became its owner. "There are six towns east of here — they just lost the grocery store, then they lost the gas station, and then they lost the bank and now they're nothing."

Some states are trying to tackle their rural grocery gaps. Supporters of such efforts point to tax incentives and subsidies at various levels of government that have enabled superstores to service larger areas and squeeze out local independent grocers. Now, dollar stores are opening in rural regions and offering items at lower prices, posing direct competition to local groceries.

Critics see that development as a threat to public health, since dollar stores typically lack quality meat and fresh produce.

But every town and every store is different, making statewide solutions elusive. Some legislators say they are reluctant to intervene too heavily because the market should close the gaps.

In North Dakota, a legislative panel is studying rural food distribution and transportation amid a steep decline in the number of groceries serving rural areas. The committee is considering whether there are public policies that could work, said state Rep. Thomas Beadle, a Republican committee member. But Beadle hopes consumers will organize and solve problems on their own.

"North Dakota is a red-leaning state," Beadle said. "We're much more free market than having government intervention. It really would take a drastic instance for the state to step in."

State Sen. Jim Dotzenrod, a Democratic committee member, said legislators are trying to understand the scope of the problem and whether they can do anything about it.

"One of the things we're trying to decide is, are there state resources that are currently in place that could be of some value, whether it's storage or transportation or things like that," Dotzenrod said. "It may be when we're done with this, we'll have to say we don't have a solution at hand. But I'm hoping that we can come up with some ideas that will help."

In rural areas, the poor tend to live farther from supermarkets than residents with more resources. The median distance to the nearest food store for rural populations in 2015 was 3.11 miles, and a shade farther for rural households enrolled in the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), better known as food stamps, according to a May 2019 report by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which oversees the program.

A slightly larger share of rural SNAP households than rural non-SNAP households, 8 percent as opposed to 7 percent, were more than 10 miles from the nearest store.

In North Dakota, 60 percent of residents who are income-eligible for SNAP participate, according to Fargo, North Dakota-based Great Plains Food Bank.

"What we're hearing from clients is that there isn't anywhere for them to use their benefits," said Melissa Sobolik, food bank president.

The perception that rural residents make a deliberate decision to live in greater isolation — and have the means to travel to buy the food they need — doesn't help, according to Evan Weissman, associate professor of food studies in the Department of Nutrition and Food Studies at Syracuse University in New York.

Concern over the lack of a downtown grocery came up multiple times at a January 2019 meeting when Madison residents were given the results of a December survey, part of an information-gathering effort by the National Main Street program. Madison lost its only downtown grocery at the end of March 2018 when Ruler Foods closed. The Madison Courier reported that when the results were presented to more than 100 attendees, it was noted this was the highest number of active participants in any of the Indiana cities involved in the survey effort, including much larger cities. Madison also set another survey record. The lack of a downtown grocery received the "strongest" percentage of reported concern in any survey the program has seen before — 90 percent. Rural, isolated areas lack public transportation. Traveling can be tough on the poor and seniors. Grocery delivery services, such as AmazonFresh, aren't widely available or practically accessible to regions where poverty and technology gaps persist.

"Some of these changes that could conceivably help close this gap, in some ways, seem to exacerbate it as rural communities are left behind," Weissman said.

In 2006, a 70-page report from the New Mexico Food and Agriculture Policy Council revealed the extent of New Mexico's rural food gap, prompting legislators to act. The report found residents drove as long as four hours round-trip to the closest grocery, or even hitchhiked to avoid high fuel costs.

Lawmakers established a food gap task force that was expected to identify solutions. One idea was a state-financed revolving loan fund that would help cash-strapped rural store owners buy produce coolers or loading docks.

But New Mexico's budget fortunes sank with the decline of oil and gas revenues around 2008 and lawmakers' priorities shifted.

In 2017, Democratic state Sen. Liz Stefanics sponsored a nonbinding resolution calling for a study on the demise of rural grocery stores. But little came of that either. Stefanics said she is consulting with Democratic Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham on the challenges facing New Mexico's rural grocers and what might be done to help them.

In recent years, other states have tried to close their own rural food gaps.

In 2015, Alabama enacted a law providing low-interest state grants to new or existing grocery stores in needy areas. And in 2017, Oklahoma created a revolving fund for rural food retailers looking to finance the construction, renovation or expansion of their stores.

More recently, Nevada lawmakers earlier this year introduced a bill to create a $10 million loan program to attract grocery stores to underserved communities. However, an amendment removed the $10 million appropriation. The bill signed by Democratic Gov. Steve Sisolak in June provides tax credits for eligible fresh food retailers.

At the federal level, USDA oversees the Healthy Food Financing Initiative, established by the 2014 farm bill, which supports healthy food retail projects in more than 35 states.

But some rural grocery owners, such as McCloud in New Mexico, say it's tough to access those dollars. McCloud didn't receive any state or federal funding to open her store.

"I couldn't find any that was applicable for a for-profit business," McCloud said. "If I were a co-op, yes, but a co-op wouldn't survive in this particular town. There wouldn't be enough [people] to help."

McCloud said she applied unsuccessfully for a USDA loan for electric cooperatives. She turned to a crowdfunding campaign and took out microloans from the community to reopen the store.

"We did look at tax credits," said Lori Capouch, rural development director for the North Dakota Association of Rural Electric Cooperatives, who facilitates a statewide rural grocery initiative. "It was kind of a joke because there's no income being made to need a tax credit."

But Jennifer Zwagerman, director of the Drake Agricultural Law Center at Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa, said rural areas with declining populations face a chicken-and-egg situation.

"How do you get people to rural communities? Well, you have to offer them the services and benefits they need to live there," Zwagerman said. "The flipside is how do you offer services of that kind? You have to have people to support them."

In North Dakota, 82 percent of towns have fewer than a thousand people. Among communities with 2,100 people or fewer, there are 98 full-service grocery stores, down from 137 in 2014, according to research from the state's association of rural electric cooperatives.

In August, Capouch testified before North Dakota legislators about the issue. The lawmakers were concerned about interfering with free enterprise, she said.

In written testimony, Capouch shared the results of a statewide study that found more than 50 percent of rural North Dakota stores have a weekly sales volume of $20,000 or less, compared with the U.S. average of $320,000. They have an annual net profit margin of $18,000 or less. Some owners and managers pay themselves after the margin is set.

"In order to have food in some of our communities, it's coming on the backs of our people," Capouch said.

Switzerland County and Southwestern met for the second time inside a week and in the end the two Ohio River Valley Conference foes were unable to get the upper hand on each other in the rematch, battling to a 1-1 tie in boys soccer Tuesday afternoon in Hanover.

The game was scoreless throughout the first half and nearly eight minutes into the second half before the two teams traded goals inside a nine-minute span.

Switzerland County broke free of the 0-0 tie with 32:28 left in the second half when a corner kick was converted on a header by Damian Breeck into the back of the net but Southwestern responded with 23:08 left on a kick by Brandon Smith that got an aided deflection by a Pacer defender to softly land in the back of the net for the tie.

Both teams had opportunities for a game-winner in the final 23 minutes but unlike their first match that saw Switzerland County win 4-3, defense equally prevailed in what was a physical and competitive match.

"We love playing Southwestern," Switzerland County head coach Brian Grigsby said. "They play physical and play hard but it's fair soccer. The kids for both teams just made it a fun game. They worked extremely hard and both teams really wanted to win. It was just a really fun match."

For both teams, the biggest takeaway with just six days before the start of the IHSAA state tournament was defense, which will play a key

Visiting Shawe won 23-25, 25-18, 23-25, 25-14 and 15-2.

"We struggled severely at times tonight. Apparently we took our opponent too lightly and it cost us a couple of games," Shawe coach Tim Torrance said. "Give CAM credit, they played very good fundamental volleyball and we were just too passive with our play."

Phoebe Grote was 19-for-21 serving with three aces and 17 digs for the Hilltoppers, Grace McAllister was 25-for-28 serving with two aces, Abigail Hill was 19-of-22 serving with two aces, Lina Leatherman had 13 kills and three blocks, and Taylor Barron had five kills.

On Tuesday, Shawe was swept by Switzerland County in three sets, 25-20, 25-20 and 25-11.

Lina Leatherman was 8-of-11 serving with two kills and two blocks for the Hilltoppers, McAllister and Hill had two kills each, and Lauren Knoebel and Grote had 11 digs each.

Switzerland, now 6-11 overall and 2-2 in the ORVC, travels to Owen County (Ky.) on Wednesday and competes in the Rising Sun Invitational on Saturday.

Shawe, now 4-14 overall, hosts Switzerland County for senior night on Tuesday and travels to Crothersville on Friday.

Christian Academy, now 5-5, competes in its regional tournament starting Friday.

three-set loss at New Washington on Tuesday, falling 25-20, 25-23, 25-13.

Kylie Eccles had eight kills on 24-for-26 hitting for the Rebels, Marissa Naylor had six kills on 22-for-24 hitting and two aces on 12-for-12 serving, and Elle Ford had five kills and one ace on 13-for-13 serving.

"New Washington played very well tonight and we didn't stay with them as well as we could have. We spent too much of the night out of system and gave them too many chances to continue hitting at us," Southwestern coach Chris Johnson said. "I thought we misplayed some back row passes and that cost us a stronger offense. Our serving performance was great and we did cut back on some hitting errors tonight."

Southwestern, now 15-12 on the season, hosts South Ripley on Thursday and hosts Austin on Monday.

Trimble falls to Shelby

Trimble County volleyball dropped a 25-20, 25-10 decision at Shelby County on Tuesday.

Emma Horn had one push kill and three block kills, Emalin Cull had a kill and a block kill, and Grace Andrews had four kills and one block kill.

Trimble, now 1-15 on the season, hosts Henry County on Thursday and hosts Eminence next Wednesday.

Cubs lose at Jennings

Madison volleyball won the opening set but then lost the next three in a 3-1 setback at Jennings County on Tuesday.

The Cubs lost 22-25, 25-17, 25-20, 26-24.

Madison, now 7-16 overall and 0-4 in the Hoosier Hills Conference, stays in the HHC to host New Albany on Thursday and travel to Columbus East on Tuesday.

roll when the postseason gets underway.

On the Switzerland County side, the Pacers fell just shy of their season goal of forcing a shutout which was lost on Southwestern's goal inside the 23rd minute. Regardless, Grigsby was quick to commend his team's efforts and said the performance provides promise of accomplishing the goal of a shutout before season's end.

"We've been letting teams score all year long and our goal tonight was to finally get that shutout," Grigsby said. "Unfortunately they (Southwestern) had a nice little chip ball that one of our guys helped in on. Minus that, our defense did really well on meeting their goal. And our finish defensively was stellar. We won some head balls and really possessed the ball well."

Southwestern, who forced its second tie in three weeks, continued to play around with its lineup in hopes of amping up the defense. The Rebels have spent the past few games putting some of their better players on the defensive end in the first half before returning to its normal rotation for a more aggressive attack on offense in the second half.

The game plan again worked. After coming off the team's first win of the season on Saturday against Franklin County, the Rebels continue to build momentum at the right time of the year.

"We're trying out some different things and getting more defensive just trying to be protective of the goal so we can hang with a lot of teams," Southwestern head coach Kevin Dillman said. "It is seeming to work out well for us. We know we have options and it's just a matter of protecting and getting the ball to the right spots. At the beginning of the year we were fighting and now we are starting to play better and give a lot of teams a run for their money."

The Pacers had nine shots including four on goal while Southwestern totaled 10 shots and five on goal. Switzerland County held a 6-2 advantage on corner kicks.

Southwestern picked up its first win of the season on Saturday with a 7-2 victory over Franklin County in the Trinity Lutheran Tournament at Seymour.

Mitchell Cline had two goals for the Rebels while Brandon Smith, Kaden Zellers, Unax Jauregi Arkarazo, Bryce Hatton and Zach Brown scored a goal each.

Southwestern capped the tournament with a 3-2 loss to Hauser. Cline and Zellers both scored goals for the Rebels.

Switzerland County (3-8-2, 1-8-2 ORVC) concludes the regular season on Thursday at conference foe Shawe before facing the Hilltoppers in the Class A Sectional opener on Monday.

Southwestern (1-11-2, 0-9-2 ORVC) awaits the Switzerland County and Shawe winner in the sectional semifinals next week after finishing the regular season on Thursday night against Jac-Cen-Del in its ORVC finale.

Hilltoppers lose to JCD

Shawe's boys soccer team lost 8-0 at Class A No. 10 Jac-Cen-Del on Monday.

Shawe, now 3-8-1 overall and 3-7-1 ORVC, travels to Milan on Wednesday and hosts Switzerland County on Thursday to wrap up the regular season. The Hilltoppers will open the sectional at Jac-Cen-Del against Switzerland on Monday.

Lady Rebels drop two

Southwestern's girls soccer team lost 6-0 to Trinity Lutheran in Seymour on Monday.

Cadence Humes, Emma Morrison and Cambryn Bryant each played well for the Rebels.

An injury and illness riddled Rebel squad was no match for Milan on Tuesday, falling 5-0 on the road.

Illness and injuries took out several Southwestern starters and goalie Hannah Sampson was lost in the first half to injury. Against that backdrop, the Rebels were unable to stop the Indians.

"Even with the lopsided score, as a whole, we played with more energy and played more controlled soccer than (Monday)," Southwestern coach Nancy Totten said. "We are a young team and on nights like this it is more apparent. I am proud of our girls sticking together and supporting each other despite these losses and further injuries."

Southwestern, now 4-8-2 overall and 1-5-1 ORVC, wraps up the regular season at home against South Ripley on Thursday and opens the Class A Sectional at Providence on Tuesday against the host Pioneers.

Cubs lose to Bulldogs

Madison's boys soccer lost 4-2 at home to conference for New Albany on Tuesday.

The Cubs, now 8-5-2 overall and 1-3-2 in the Hoosier Hills Conference, close out the regular season at HHC foe Floyd Central on Thursday.

Madison then hosts Salem in the opening round of the Class 2A Sectional Tuesday at the Junior High soccer complex.

Oak Heritage Conservancy

Annual dinner hosts a nature-themed night out

By PEGGY VLEREBOME
Special to the Courier

As a toddler, Scott Russell Sanders, dragging a burlap bag, left the cotton field in his native Memphis, Tennessee, and climbed a levy. There, spread before him was the Mississippi River in is roiling, muddy majesty.

He has thought a lot about rivers since that day on the levy, which he later wrote "mesmerized and terrified" him.

"Rivers still affect me that way," Sanders wrote in an essay, "The Force of Moving Water."

"Anybody who is not a bit scared by a river has either not looked at a real one or not looked hard enough," he wrote.

Sanders, a retired Distinguished Professor of English at Indiana University in Bloomington, will be in Madison Saturday, Oct. 12 as the speaker at the annual dinner of the Oak Heritage Conservancy. The event will be from 5:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Red Bicycle Hall, 125 E. Main St. Reservations are required and cost $30. Go to oakheritageconservancy.org/events to make reservations.

The title of his presentation will be "The Force of Moving Water." In the essay, he wrote that rivers and their tributaries should define our place on the planet, rather than arbitrary boundaries set by people.

"When we figure our addresses, we might do better to forget ZIP codes and consider where the rain goes after it falls outside our windows," Sanders wrote.

Using rivers as state boundaries, he wrote, "is false to the land because rivers join rather than divide their two shores."

Sanders was born in Memphis in 1945 and spent his early childhood there. During his school years his family lived in northeastern Ohio, where the Mahoning River ran through his family's property. They had to move when their property was taken for construction of a dam. Wherever he has lived, there has been a river, he wrote. His essay begins with the Mississippi River and then turns to the Ohio River.

Sanders received an undergraduate degree from Brown University and a doctorate in English from the University of Cambridge. He has written 20 books of fiction and nonfiction. He writes fiction, nonfiction, science fiction and children's books in addition to personal essays. The Jefferson County Public Library and Village Lights Bookstore have some of his works.

He has published collections of his essays including "Earth Works," published by Indiana University Press in 2012. His next book, "The Way of Imagination," a collection of his essays, is scheduled to be published in September 2020 by Counterpoint Press. His most recent book is a novel, "Divine Animal," published in 2014.

Sanders is a contributing editor to Orion, an environmental magazine.

He has received the Lannan Literary Award, the John Burroughs Essay Award, the Mark Twain Award, the Cecil Woods Award for Nonfiction, the Eugene and Marilyn Glick Indiana Authors Award and the Indiana Humanities Award. He has received fellowships from the Guggenheim Foundation and the National Endowment for the Arts and also support for his writing from the Lilly Endowment and the Indiana Arts Commission. In 2012 he was elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

The event in Madison will include an exhibit by local nature photographer Bernie Kasper and a silent auction of nature-related items, in keeping with the Hanover-based Oak Heritage Conservancy's mission of conserving nature. A description of the sites owned by the conservancy is on its website, oakheritageconservancy.org

PETS OF THE WEEK

DAX

Dax is a 4- to 6-month-old domestic short hair male. He is an energetic boy who enjoys running around and playing with his two shelter buddies. He loves to wrestle and is a loving guy who will warm up to anyone. He enjoys making new friends for those who visit the shelter.

There are many cats now at the shelter. At the moment, only Sunday appointments are open.

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter now has 12 dogs or puppies, and 35 cats or kittens available. Pictures of additional pets waiting for adoption can be viewed at www.sisaveapet.com

Regular shelter hours are Monday, Thursday and Friday from noon to 5 p.m., Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday from noon to 4 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 3 p.m. It is closed Tuesday. The shelter number is (812) 273-1788 and the email is animal.shelter39@jefferson-county.in.gov

All cats and kittens are $45 off unless they are already spay or neutered. Discount is courtesy of the Animal Shelter and the Jefferson County Humane Society.

Volunteers are always welcome at the shelter. Individuals must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. Volunteers can help with everyday cleaning, answering phones, and exercising the pets. Contact the shelter for details.

The shelter is a registered organization with the Kroger Community Rewards program. To support the shelter, register a Kroger card at www.krogercommunityrewards.com and enter FL919.

Support the shelter while walking your dog. Use the "Walk for a Dog" or "Woof-Trax" app available through the App Store or Google Play. For each mile walked, a donation is made to the shelter.

A list of needed items can be found on the shelter website. Donations can be mailed to 2727 Hannah Drive, Madison, IN 47250 or dropped off during shelter hours. The shelter also accepts aluminum and steel cans, which are recycled and the proceeds put toward the medical fund. The shelter asks that aluminum and steel donations be separated. Steel cans should also be rinsed before they are dropped off. Cans can be dropped off at anytime in a bin located on the east side of the shelter.

Those with missing pets can stop by the shelter, call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption.

Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours.

For animal control issues in Madison, call (812) 265-3347. For animal control issues in Hanover and Jefferson County, call (812) 265-2648.

BRIDGE

IS THIS THE LUCKIEST SLAM OF ALL TIME?

Bruce Springsteen said, "When it comes to luck, you make your own."

I have always felt that the better you play, the luckier you will be, not only at the bridge table.

Which is the luckiest slam contract ever? My vote goes for this deal, which was declared by Jose Le Dentu from France and included in his book, "Donnes Extraordinaires."

Le Dentu asks the reader to critique the auction.

Understandably, he criticizes North's three-club positive and four-diamond rebid. But he makes no comment about his (old-fashioned) strong two-bid, when surely it would have been better to begin with two no-trump. Also, he ignores East's crazy double. Reading that double as Lightner, asking for the first suit bid by the dummy, West led the club six.

Having only one chance -- luck in three suits -- Le Dentu played dummy's club 10. When it held, he led a diamond to his queen, overtook the club king with dummy's ace, discarded the spade 10 on the club queen, repeated the trump finesse and cashed the diamond ace. Now, needing only one heart loser, Le Dentu led the heart two from hand. Yes, the unbelievable happened: The ace did drop out of the sky. Six spades doubled and made!

All this contract needed, given no heart lead, was a singleton heart ace and West with jack-third of clubs and three low diamonds. By my calculations, this is about a 0.03% contract. But at least Le Dentu made the most of his luck.

Cutting family ties with abusive mother

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I have an abusive mother, and for many years I put myself in her path. Any time I opened up to someone about her behavior, I heard, "But she's your mum," or "She means well," or "You only have one mother," much like the letter writer "Chosen Family."

All that did was to cement my mother's accusation of my nastiness.

I do know why she is the way she is. My grandfather was a horrible man who was very uninterested in a daughter. But I also learned about narcissists (her) and how they use scapegoats (me).

I understand it is not me. But just because I understand doesn't mean I will put myself in a situation where I could be abused again. And, more importantly, I will not allow my daughter to be subjected to the same judgment I have heard her spout about my nieces. I will not allow this toxicity to hurt another generation. As for all those who are lucky enough to not understand, I look them in the eye and unashamedly tell them that my mother is a nasty woman and I don't see her.

Just because she's my mum doesn't mean much. — Staying Away

Dear Staying Away: I am sorry that you didn't have a mom who was as loving, accepting and nurturing as you deserved. Sadly, you are correct that not everyone gets a good mother. Your awareness about why your mother treated you the way she did is commendable.

The next step would be to see your mom as a victim of abuse from her father, and then, with time, you can forgive her for the way she treated you. Forgive her, not for her sake, but for yours. Holding onto that anger for years can be toxic to you and your daughter. Thank you for sharing your story.

Dear Annie: I am reacting to "Kitchen Confidential" and the problem with her boyfriend who doesn't eat a healthy diet. He has no history of proper meals, and she really can't expect him to suddenly change. In order to learn, and to spend fun time as a couple, I suggest that they take cooking lessons together. She said they are now living in a larger city, so there are likely to be several options available. Not only will he — and she — learn good cooking and eating options, but they will also have a great time. — Love to Cook

Dear Love to Cook: Cooking classes are a great idea! They could be a fun and healthy activity for the couple to do together. Thank you.

Dear Annie: Your sage advice to "Helpless and Powerless," who is frustrated because ever expanding technology has made modern life more complicated, was on the mark. You offered understanding for his feeling of being powerless, and you showed him a way out by informing him that "you do have the power to change your perspective." That reminded me of an Alexander Pope quote I learned from my fourth-grade teacher: "Be not the first by which the new is tried; nor the last to lay the old aside." — Wise Words

Dear Wise Words: Thank you very much for your kind words. Your fourth-grade teacher sounds like a very astute person.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Annie Lane's debut book – featuring favorite columns on love, friendship, family and etiquette – is available as a paperback and e-book. Visit http://www.creatorspublishing.com for more information.
